

Layed by the Plague

Captain Festus McBoyle

*Yes, the day I got layed by the plague
The day that I wed the black spot in a grave
Dead for 3 days in an old wooden box
Then I came back to life from the smell of me socks*

How Devine

But the wife just sighed and went "Oh come on, you'll be fine"

*Yes, the day I was dead, done and dusted
Me Piratry bones they were busted
A tongue full of ulcers me teeth far between Gums all encoated with foul smelling cream*

How Devine

But still the wife sighed and went "Oh come on, you'll be fine"

*I couldn't move me fingers or me toes
My mouth was shut and me eyes were closed
And I was starting to feel quite worried
Infact to be perfectly honest, I was feeling, just a tad, Perplexed*

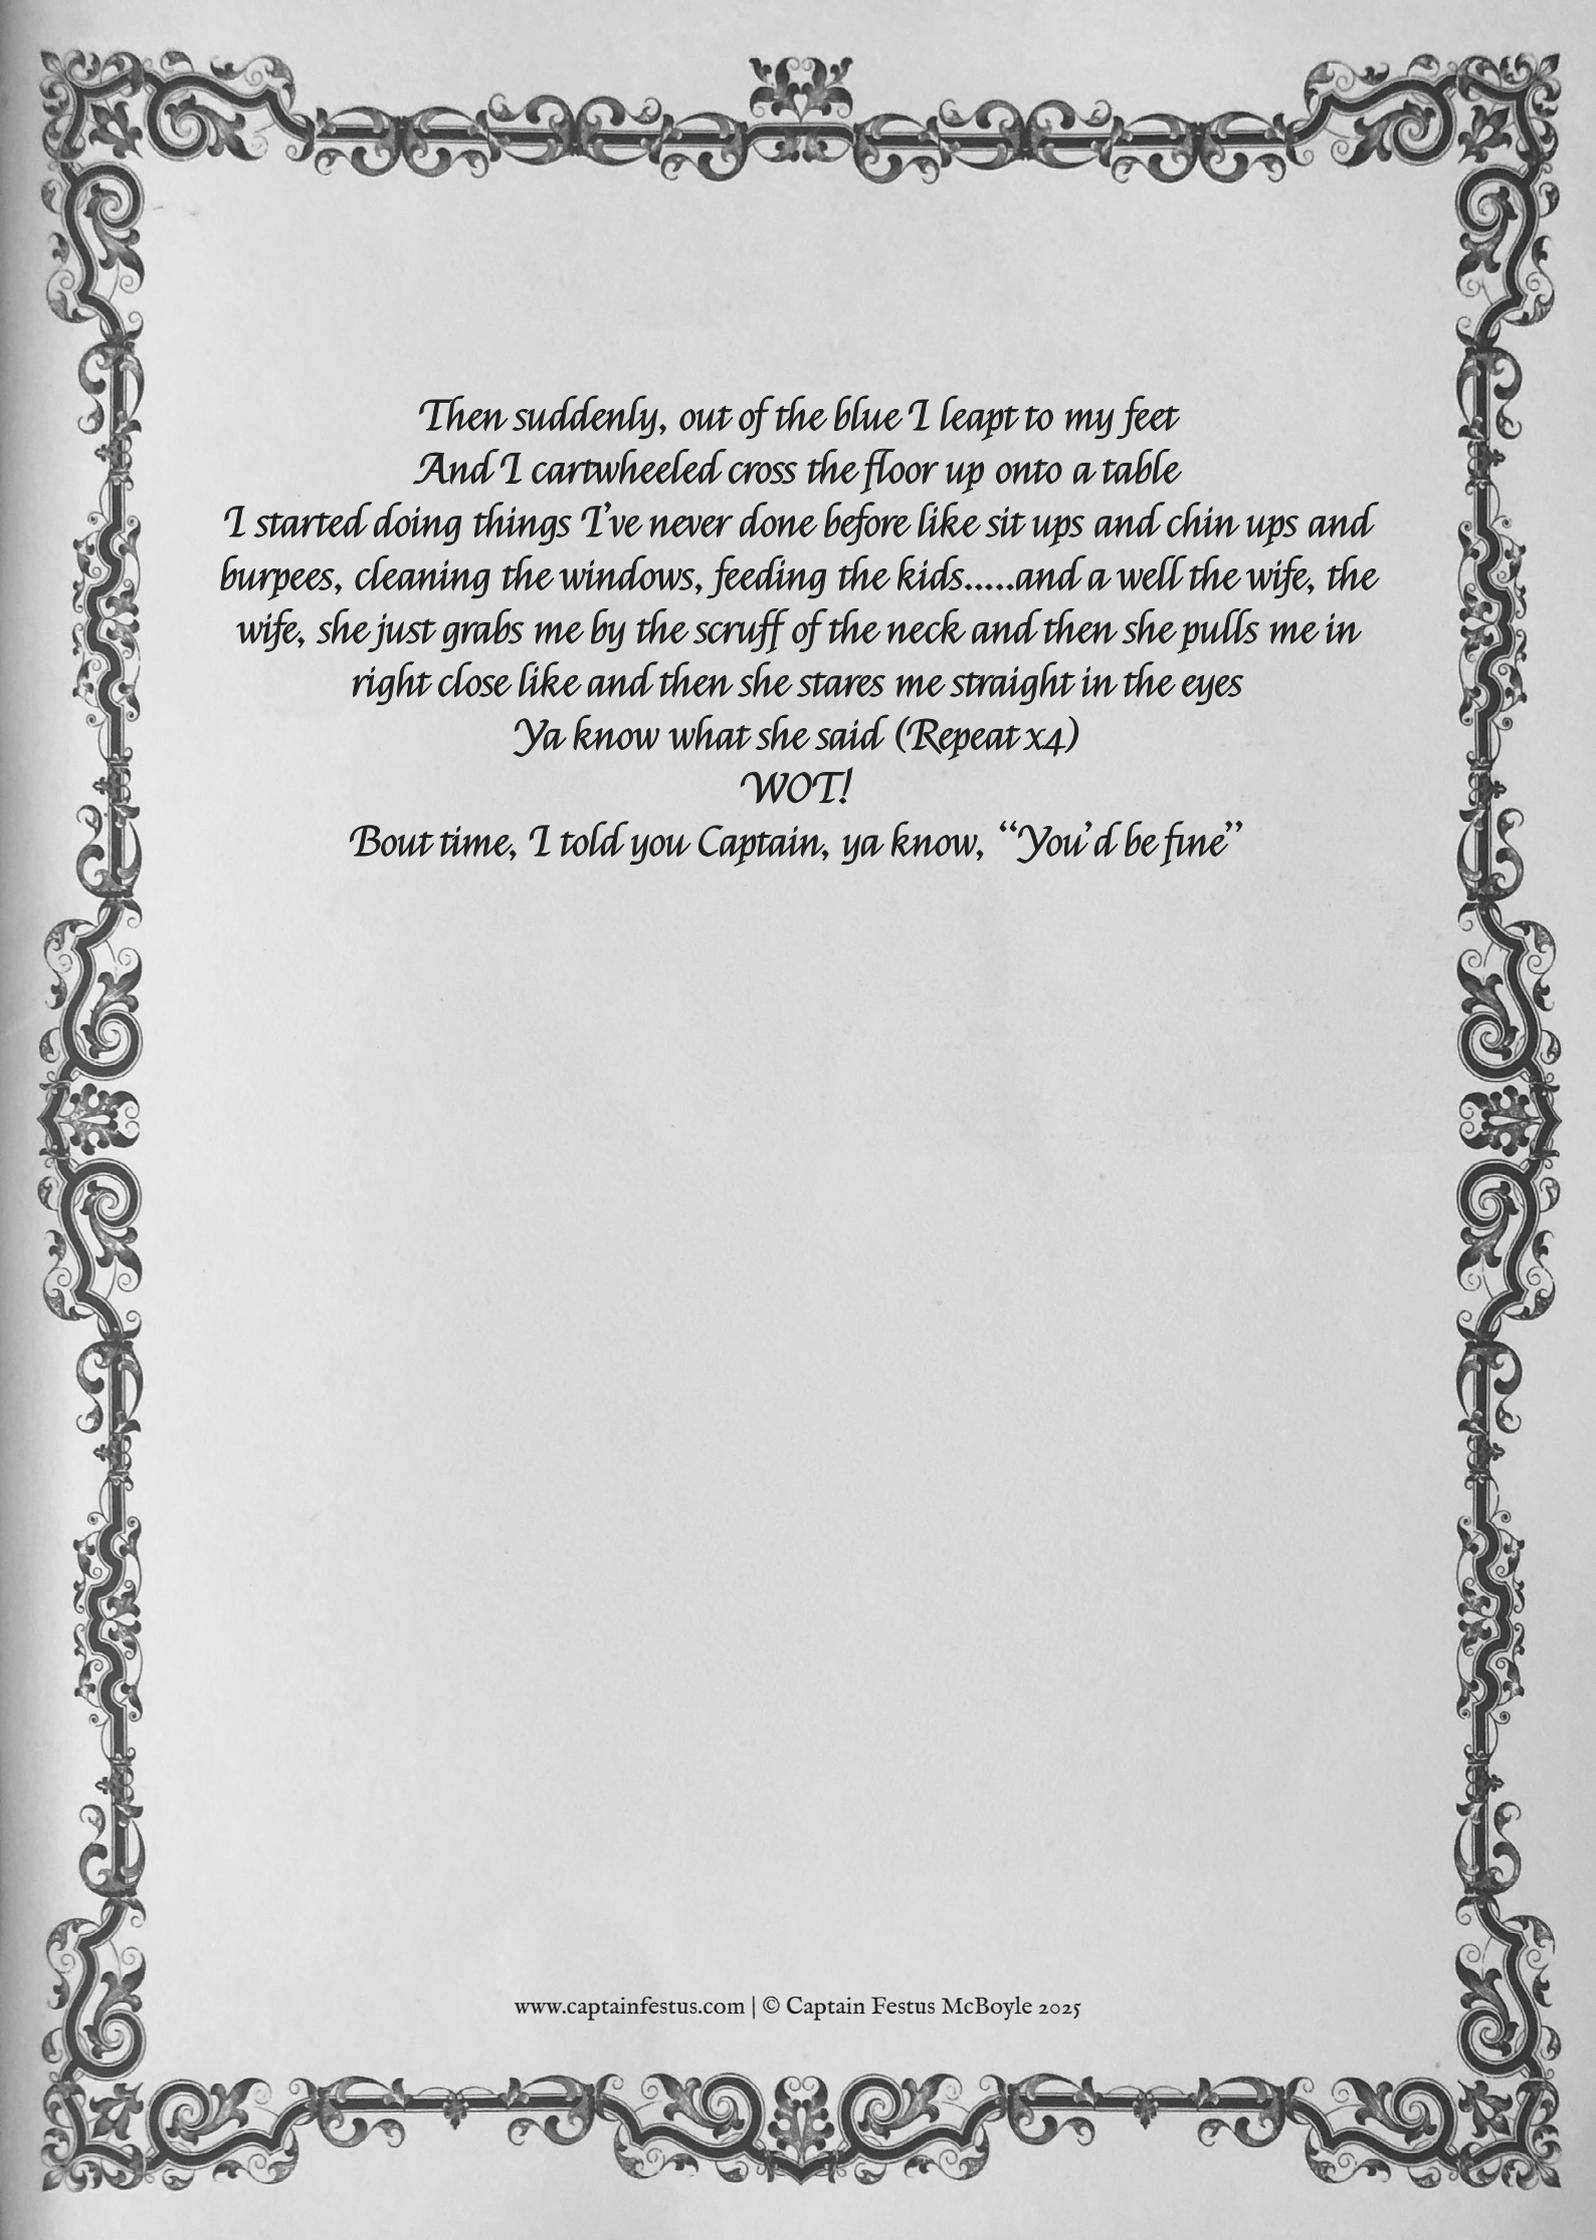

Ooooooh

That's a big word for a Pirate

*Yes, the day I was layed by the plague
The day I went stiff like a board or a blade
They took off my boots to reveal both my feet
The odour it rose to my nose what a treat
How Devine
And then suddenly I started to feel fine*

*I mean I still couldn't move my fingers or me toes
My mouth was shut and my eyes were closed
But the blood was pulsing back through my veins
And I was starting to feel that maybe, just maybe, there was a glimmer, of Hope
aaarrrrgh
Yeah, I know it's not a big word but it is a word that can contain huge potential*

*But the doctors pronounced I was dead
They looked at each other and both of them said
"Look at his face it's putrid and green,
HmMMM, quite foul like nothing I've seen,
What a find"
"He was always quite mad that man
But ya know, one of a kind"*

*Then suddenly, out of the blue I leapt to my feet
And I cartwheeled cross the floor up onto a table I started doing things I've never done before like sit ups and chin ups and burpees, cleaning the windows, feeding the kids.....and a well the wife, the wife, she just grabs me by the scruff of the neck and then she pulls me in right close like and then she stares me straight in the eyes Ya know what she said (Repeat x4) WOT!
Bout time, I told you Captain, ya know, "You'd be fine"*